

#6. Azure Cascades

Artist

Name: Craig Snyder

Phone: [REDACTED]

Email: craig@fireshapes.com

Address: [REDACTED]

Website: fireshapes.com

Personal Statement

Craig was bitten by the metal bug in the 00s and has since done numerous sculpture and public art pieces and commissions. He works mostly with steel, stainless steel, brass, copper, aluminum, stone and wood for his sculptures. Craig has an affinity to color and often will use paint and vibrant patinas to create eye-catching and interesting pieces. Of course, the best thing about sculpture is that it is so pure. I enjoy it so much and truly love to pass my joy and affection for it to others. Art can be so serious at times.

Many of my pieces are very approachable and appeal to a wide audience. I love doing public art because people can see it in the real world.

Sculpture

Title: 'Azure Cascades'

Description: Azure Cascades taps into that primeval feeling we have for a waterfall. Life-giving pure water is crucial to life and is fun to play in too. I was just recently in Costa Rica and hiked to a small fall. As an observer of people, it was fascinating how a diverse group speaking many different languages could bond while swimming at the foot of the falls – it quickly broke down the inconsequential barriers we erect to shield our true selves.

Dimensions: 9' x 4' x 4'

Weight: 450lbs

Materials: Patinated welded steel

Installation Requirements: bolt to a concrete pad

Selling Price: $9,400

